Hello, Regarding the planning proposal in the Epping Forest district for Loughton, I am opposing strongly to the proposals. 1. The number of new houses is absurd, taking away green spaces to build new houses is not a great idea. The current green spaces in Loughton are precious and reducing them will leave people with less recreational grounds. 2. The new housing plan is proposing too many houses for the area. It will put more pressure on the infrastructure including roads, tube, buses. 3. Also this urban overcrowding will destroy the current suburban environment in the area. 4. The planning doesn't clear state how many schools are going to be built to accommodate the extra people coming to the area for those new homes. 5. The planning doesn't clear mention how many new health centres and GP practices will be open to cover for the new homes. The current service is under stretch and bring more people to the area definitely is not going to help. Overall it is appalling to build over 1000 homes under the current infrastructure. Thanks Pedro R Mendoza
