To whom it may concern, I was very surprised to learn that Epping Forest District Council are proposing to build 195 dwellings on the green space of Jessel Green. I only heard of the proposal through a neighbour and had received nothing from EFDC concerning the matter? I feel this would be a terrible thing to do, I recognise the fact that more housing is needed however to take away a well used and loved green space would not be in the local community's interest. Even from the mental aspect of having a green space taken away can be devastating on people. The green is used all year round and forms a local point for many activities including the hugely successful Debden Fun Day. We need this space to remain, if the council care for the 'local people' at all. More dwellings in the area will also put a huge strain on local resources, including schools, doctors, available parking etc. The list goes on and on. Considering there are other housing projects going on in the area already, destroying the open space that is Jessel Green would be a massive injustice to the local population. Once taken away it can neer be returned for future generations to enjoy.
